I. Introduction

1. The present report is submitted pursuant to Human Rights Council decision 2/102, in which the Council requested the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights to continue with the fulfilment of her activities, in accordance with all previous decisions adopted by the Commission on Human Rights and to update the relevant reports and studies. The Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) had initially interpreted decision 2/102 as extending previous reports of the Commission on Human Rights and providing for an annual reporting cycle. Until recently, this interpretation had been deemed to have received the tacit approval of member States. However, an objection was placed on the record in 2010 in the context of another report which also referred to decision 2/102 as the basis for its annual reporting. OHCHR has thus reviewed the said decision, and concluded that the Human Rights Council sought to fill a technical gap by ensuring that reports which were deemed to have been submitted to the sixty-second session of the Human Rights Commission would be extended by one year and transferred to the subsequent substantive session of the Human Rights Council. With this transition period over and an objection now on record with regard to the initial interpretation of annual reporting cycles, if the Human Rights Council wishes such reporting to be continued, a new Human Rights Council resolution or decision on the matter should be tabled.

2. The present report outlines progress achieved since the last report of the Secretary-General submitted to the Human Rights Council at its thirteenth session in March 2010 (A/HRC/13/44). This report should be read in conjunction with the Secretary-General’s report to the General Assembly on the role of the Ombudsman, mediator and other national human rights institutions in the promotion and protection of human rights (A/65/340), and the Secretary-General’s report to the Human Rights Council on the process currently utilized by the International Coordinating Committee to accredit national institutions in compliance with the Paris Principles (A/HRC/16/77).

II. Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR) and national human rights institutions (NHRIs)

3. In compliance with the Paris Principles, NHRIs are essential pillars of national human rights systems for the promotion and protection of human rights. They can play a crucial role in promoting and monitoring the effective implementation of international human rights standards at the national level. By its resolution A/RES/64/161 and a number of earlier resolutions, the General Assembly recognized the role of NHRIs in working with governments to ensure full respect for human rights at the national level, including by contributing to follow-up actions, as appropriate, to the recommendations resulting from the international human rights mechanisms. In her opening statement at the 23rd Annual Meeting of the International Coordinating Committee, held in Geneva from 23 to 25 March 2010, the High Commissioner highlighted the instrumental role that NHRIs play in monitoring the implementation of international human rights law and standards.

4. OHCHR accords priority to the establishment and strengthening of NHRIs with due regard for the Principles Relating to the Status of National Institutions (the Paris Principles) adopted by the General Assembly in its resolution 48/134. OHCHR supports the increased contribution of NHRIs in the United Nations and regional human rights mechanisms. OHCHR encourages the sharing of good practices among NHRIs, supports the strengthening of their regional networks, and facilitates their cooperation with United Nations country teams and other relevant partners. OHCHR is also engaged in improving United Nations system-wide coordination on NHRIs.
A/HRC/16/76

5. Since 2003, OHCHR has maintained the National Human Rights Institutions Forum website (www.nhri.net). The website is linked to the web pages of OHCHR and NHRIs, and includes information on the United Nations human rights system, country and thematic issues, and the activities of the International Coordinating Committee.

6. Since 2008, the OHCHR fellowship programme for NHRIs has hosted staff from A-status institutions in Australia, El Salvador, Egypt, Nepal, Nicaragua, the Occupied Palestinian Territory, Republic of Korea, Togo and Uganda. This programme has enabled the fellows to gain knowledge of, and experience within, the United Nations. It has also been beneficial for OHCHR, in terms of substantive expertise and the consolidation of contacts with staff from national institutions. OHCHR has issued a new call for candidates for 2011. Up to four staff members from NHRIs will be selected to work in the National Institutions and Regional Mechanisms Section of OHCHR for a period up to 12 months.

A. Advisory services provided by OHCHR to NHRIs

7. OHCHR activities to strengthen the role of NHRIs at the country, regional and international levels are carried out mainly through the National Institutions and Regional Mechanisms Section, which works in consultation with other parts of OHCHR, including field presences. OHCHR has continued to provide advice and assistance in the establishment and strengthening of institutions through its country and regional offices, human rights advisers and human rights components of United Nations peace missions, as well as through collaboration with other United Nations partners, including the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), and regional coordinating bodies of NHRIs. OHCHR also works closely with intergovernmental organisations, academic institutions and civil society organisations.

8. OHCHR provides legal and technical assistance to NHRIs and other national stakeholders. Advice is provided on constitutional or legislative frameworks regarding the establishment of NHRIs, as well as on their nature, functions, powers and responsibilities. Comparative analysis, technical cooperation needs assessments, project formulation and evaluation missions are also undertaken to establish and strengthen the institutions’ compliance with the Paris Principles.

In the aftermath of the January 2010 earthquake in Haiti, OHCHR, in cooperation with the Organisation Internationale de la Francophonie (OIF) and the independent expert on the human rights situation in Haiti, helped the Ombudsman (Protectrice du Citoyen) to build the capacities of this institution. In March, OHCHR supported the participation of the Ombudsman at the 23rd Annual Meeting of the International Coordinating Committee. During the session, a special meeting took place to discuss support to the Ombudsman of Haiti. In July, OHCHR and OIF launched a joint project to help the institution carry out a capacity assessment with a view to promoting a human rights-based approach during the reconstruction phase. 78. From 8 to 10 December 2010, representatives from the International Coordinating Committee attended the Ambassadorial Retreat on the review of the Human Rights Council, hosted by the Thai Government in Bangkok, Thailand.

2. Universal Periodic Review

79. In 2010, 48 countries were reviewed during the 7th to 9th sessions of the Universal Periodic Review (UPR). Of those countries, 19 have an NHRI accredited by the International Coordinating Committee. 12 of those NHRIIs submitted information for the stakeholders’ report,\(^2\) including 10 holding “A” status, and two with “B” status.

80. Individual NHRIIs and regional networks continued to submit written and oral statements under Council agenda item 6 (Universal Periodic Review). During the reporting period, the NHRIIs of Azerbaijan (A/HRC/14/NI/1), Great Britain (A/HRC/13/NI/4), Egypt (A/HRC/14/NI/9), and Asia Pacific Forum (A/HRC/14/NI/10) submitted written contributions under this agenda item, while the NHRIIs of Bolivia, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Portugal delivered oral statements. The statements followed up the UPR recommendations.

81. During the review of Kenya and Panama by the Working Group of the UPR at its 8th and 9th sessions respectively, OHCHR provided assistance to the NHRIIs of these countries to organize side events on the UPR preparation process and the role that the NHRI could play in this regard.

82. The President of the Council appointed a facilitator to lead informal consultations on the UPR as part of the work of the Working Group on the Human Rights Council Review. A number of States and civil society organizations supported a strengthened role of NHRIIs in the UPR. The International Coordinating Committee presented the following proposals concerning A-status NHRIIs: 1) NHRIIs should be allocated speaking time during the review of their countries by the Working Group on the UPR, following the respective State’s presentation; 2) NHRIIs should be able to submit a separate report on their State in future UPR cycles; 3) NHRIIs should be able to submit written questions and recommendations relating to the UPR review of their country; 4) during Council’s plenary discussion and adoption of the UPR report, NHRIIs should be given the floor immediately after their corresponding State; 5) NHRIIs should be able to provide regular updates to the Council on the implementation of UPR outcomes; 6) the UPR Trust Fund should be extended to support NHRI attendance of the Working Group on the UPR.

3. Special procedures

83. During the reporting period, a number of NHRIIs interacted with special procedures mandate holders and submitted written contributions to the Human Rights Council to complement the mandate holders’ country mission reports.

84. The Chairperson of the International Coordinating Committee participated in the 17th Annual Meeting of Special Procedures, held in Geneva from 26 June to 2 July 2010. OHCHR and the International Coordinating Committee organized a parallel event in the margins of the meeting on the role of NHRIIs in following up special procedures’ recommendations.

85. Special Rapporteurs have increasingly recognised the role that NHRIIs can play at the national level to assist in the implementation of the special procedures mandates.

\(^2\) The NHRIIs of Bolivia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Croatia, Egypt, El Salvador, Kenya, Maldives, Mongolia, Nicaragua, Panama, Slovenia and Spain.
During 2010, the SRSG on violence against children, the Independent Expert on the human rights situation in Haiti, and the SRSG on business and human rights carried out a number of activities aimed at strengthening their cooperation with individual NHRIs and the International Coordinating Committee.

86. In October 2010, the SRSG on violence against children and the Special Rapporteur on the sale of children, child prostitution and child pornography addressed a questionnaire to NHRIs regarding the report that they have been mandated to present to the Human Rights Council on effective and child-sensitive counseling, complaint and reporting mechanisms by which children can safely report incidents of violence, including sexual violence and exploitation.

87. OHCHR regularly provides special procedures mandate holders with information concerning the work of NHRIs in the preparation of their country missions. The mandate holders increasingly look to NHRIs for assistance in ensuring that their recommendations are followed up at the national level. This is an important area of work for NHRIs and should be further encouraged.

88. The President of the Council appointed a facilitator to lead informal consultations on Special Procedures as part of the Working Group on the Human Rights Council Review. The International Coordinating Committee supported the following proposals, inter alia: 1) where a special procedures mandate holder addresses a country situation to the Council, either through presentation of a country-specific report or addressing the situation in a thematic report, the A-status NHRI from that State should have the opportunity to take the floor immediately after intervention by the State concerned so as to directly contribute to interactive dialogue; and 2) A-status NHRIs should be able to regularly provide the Council with information on the implementation of special procedures recommendations in their State.

B. Treaty bodies

89. As an ongoing activity, OHCHR has systematically engaged with treaty bodies by providing updated information and expert analysis on NHRIs and their related activities. It also regularly updates a compilation of all concluding observations and recommendations, issued by the treaty bodies, that mention NHRIs (www.nhri.net), and forwards the concluding observations to the NHRIs concerned.

90. The NHRI of Morocco organized a meeting on strengthening the relationship between NHRIs and the human rights treaty bodies system on 9 and 10 June 2010 in Marrakech. The meeting gathered representatives from all the regional networks of NHRIs, the OHCHR and the Chairperson of the International Coordinating Committee. Treaty-body experts participated as observers. Participants adopted the Marrakech Statement which includes recommendations to enhance the treaty-body system, ensure broader access to treaty bodies, as well as on NHRI follow-up to treaty-body recommendations.

91. On the occasion of the 100th session of the Human Rights Committee, held in Geneva from 11 to 29 October 2010, the NHRI of Morocco delivered a statement on behalf of the International Coordinating Committee on the role of NHRIs in the implementation of the Human Rights Committee’s recommendations at the national level. The statement highlighted the significant role that NHRIs play at the national level in monitoring, protecting and promoting human rights.
C. Commission on the Status of Women (CSW)

92. The Chairperson of the International Coordinating Committee and 11 NHRIs from the four regional networks attended the 54th session of the CSW, held in New York from 1 to 12 March 2010. They participated in meetings and delivered oral statements advocating for the independent participation of A-status NHRIs in the work of the CSW.

IV. Cooperation among OHCHR, United Nations agencies and programmes, and international and regional organizations to support NHRIs

A. United Nations Development Programme

93. During the reporting period, OHCHR continued to strengthen its strategic partnership with UNDP.

94. On 10 December 2010, the High Commissioner for Human Rights and the UNDP Administrator launched the UNDP-OHCHR Toolkit for Collaboration with NHRIs. The Toolkit was developed over a 2-year consultative process to support UNCT staff in their work with NHRIs, and to help NHRIs better understand the United Nations and identify mutual areas of interest. A joint UNDP-OHCHR letter was sent to all United Nations Resident Coordinators together with the electronic version of the Toolkit.3

B. Association for the Prevention of Torture (APT) and the Asia Pacific Forum (APF)

95. On 8 October 2010, during the 10th International Conference of NHRIs, the High Commissioner for Human Rights launched the publication, “Preventing Torture: An Operational Guide for NHRIs”.4 This guide is the outcome of cooperation between OHCHR, the APT and the APF. It builds on the experience acquired during previous joint training projects such as the APT-OHCHR Actors for Change, and the APT-APF training programmes for NHRIs in the Asia Pacific region.

C. Association of Mediterranean Ombudsmen

96. OHCHR participated in the 4th meeting of the Association of Mediterranean Ombudsmen, held in Madrid on 14 and 15 June 2010 on the theme, “Immigration and human rights: a challenge for Ombudsman institutions?” The meeting, hosted by the Ombudsman of Spain, adopted a resolution highlighting the Association’s engagement in promoting cooperation between Ombudsmen, mediators and other NHRIs handling complaints from migrants.

V. Conclusions and recommendations

97. NHRIs compliant with the Paris Principles are key elements of a strong and effective national human rights system aimed at the promotion and protection of human rights. The development of appropriate mechanisms of cooperation between NHRIs and other national institutions with a role in the promotion and protection of human rights, including Ombudsman institutions, should be encouraged.

98. NHRIs are well placed to support Governments to ensure the implementation of international human rights norms and standards. An increasing number of independent NHRIs are carrying out an implementing role in relation to the Optional Protocol to the Convention against Torture and Other Cruel, Inhuman and Degrading Treatment and Punishment, and the Optional Protocol to the Convention on the Rights of Persons with Disabilities. Governments and NHRIs are encouraged to work together to ensure the implementation of international human rights law and standards at the national level.

99. A constructive relationship between independent NHRIs and Parliaments can make an invaluable contribution to the promotion and protection of human rights at the national level, particularly in ensuring the compliance of national laws and practices with international human rights norms. Initiatives undertaken with a view to promoting closer cooperation between Parliaments and NHRIs should be promoted.

100. The Paris Principles require effective cooperation between NHRIs and representatives from civil society organizations. There is a need for open, participatory and pluralistic processes when establishing or strengthening NHRIs in compliance with the Paris Principles.

101. The active involvement of NHRIs, through the International Coordinating Committee, in the ongoing Human Rights Council’s review is welcome. Likewise, the engagement of NHRIs compliant with the Paris Principles in the UPR mechanism is increasingly important both in its preparation and its follow-up.

102. The adoption of the Marrakech Statement on strengthening the relationship between NHRIs and the Human Rights Treaty Bodies System is welcome. NHRIs are encouraged to continue engaging in the process of reflection on how to streamline and strengthen the treaty-body system.

103. The adoption of the Edinburgh Declaration on business and human rights and the role of NHRIs is welcome. The Declaration confirmed the expanding role of NHRIs in addressing corporate-related human rights violations. NHRIs and civil society organizations are encouraged to work together towards the implementation of the commitments made in Edinburgh.

104. United Nations country teams are encouraged to actively use the UNDP-OHCHR Toolkit for Collaboration with NHRIs in their daily work, including in developing United Nations-coordinated approaches towards NHRIs.

105. The important work of the regional networks of NHRIs has been acknowledged, and greater cooperation between the regional networks and the International Coordinating Committee is encouraged.

106. It is important that adequate financial resources be allocated to NHRIs and there is need for them to enjoy financial independence and autonomy for their effective performance.
